

Veterans History Project

About the Project

Partnering with the Library of Congress and the Nashville Public Library, Congressman Cooper is working to collect and preserve the stories of Tennessee veterans for future generations. The Veterans History Project compiles oral histories and written materials such as letters, journals, maps, and photographs from veterans of World War I, World War II, the Korean and Vietnam wars, the Persian Gulf war, and the conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq.

The project is an initiative of the Library of Congress and was created by the United States Congress in 2000 as a way to collect the stories and experiences of war veterans while they are still among us.

Cooper's office will be conducting taped interviews of local veterans and compiling donated written materials. Congressman Cooper will then deliver the oral histories and documents to the Library of Congress for cataloging and archiving.

[Click
here to read more about the Library of Congress and the Veterans History Project]

[To
read more about the Fifth Congressional District's Veterans History Project, click here]

[To
view photos from the Fifth Congressional District's Veteran History Project launch,
click here]

from
the collections of the Library of Congress

Meet the Veterans

from
the collections of the Library of Congress

To
meet some of the Fifth District's veterans who have already participated in the project, click here